NEW VALUES.

In recent times a lot has changed in our world. In many cases the kitchen table has become our home office, and we invite guests to meals in our own dining room rather than at a restaurant. Perhaps we even spend our holidays in the living room, with wellness on the comfortable family sofa included. Today furnishing the home means more than ever before. We at KARE want you to feel good when you walk into your front door. Our new magazine shows how you can give your four walls a vitamin boost with new styles, and how your interior can become more attractive, cosy and functional. And why, in our eyes, furniture is not something to dispose of lightly, because a sideboard made of real wood represents new, sustainable values. With us you will find favourite pieces that have the makings of a lifelong friendship, not to mention lots of decorating ideas that put the new fun in furnishing. As the founders of our company we go the extra mile to inspire you with interior design ideas for a changing world. We invite you to explore our stories and unique furnishing ideas now: tables which raise dining to a new level, carpeting treasures for the floor and everything that a stylish home office requires. Or perhaps even a cosy sofa which will add a further touch of comfort to your living room. ■

Have fun!

How does a diva live? In simple elegance, subtle glamour and with a touch of industrial flair. At least when it comes to the taste of the Bosnian influencer @divaisback. Together with our KARE Sarajevo team she has fulfilled her furnishing dreams in her new apartment, and gives us an insight into her stylish home.

Erna Saljević

INFLUENCER

On her Instagram blog @divaisback she regularly shares content from her life with her followers. And in her case this means plenty of style and joie de vivre. No wonder that Erna Saljević is one of the most popular influencers in Bosnia. And it's just as clear that KARE plays a major role here! "I wanted a furnishing ambience in which a minimalist yet comfortable sofa plays the leading role - not the TV", says the charming marketing and PR professional. "I discussed all my wishes with KARE's interior design team, who then provided me with 3D plans before we started implementing them". The result: a modern, bright home full of style and charm - just like its occupant. ■

Her furnishing motto? "I love neutral colours and enjoy combining them with gaudy accessories. My favourite colour is red. It gives me energy for my work in my home office, and is a great contrast to high-quality basics in cream and black and white." Her most important room is the living room - here Joy likes to receive guests in the evening and it's where she posts on the KARE Instagram and Pinterest accounts during the day. INTERVIEW

ALWAYS UNIQUE, NEVER DULL

"IT MAKES US PROUD THAT OUR COSMOPOLITAN ATTITUDE TO LIFE TRANSCENDS CULTURAL AND NATIONAL BOUNDARIES"

Peter Schönhofen & Jürgen Reiter,
Owners, founders & CEOs

What gets you out of bed every morning? For the two founders of KARE, Peter Schönhofen and Jürgen Reiter, it is their passion for making life a little bit more attractive with their furnishing ideas. They founded the company because they were frustrated by the furniture that was available for furnishing their student flat share. Whether it was a chair for the kitchen-living room or shelving for the books they had to study, the articles on offer in the furniture stores were either boring or expensive. So they came up with the idea of providing their own great designs that would put the fun into furnishing for everyone! In this interview they tell us how challenging this path still is to the present day.

JÜRGEN REITER, CEO & TOTO

I firmly believe that you don't have to live off the peg when you're furnishing. At KARE we inspire the imagination and create a variety of styles and ideas. This allows our customers to express their personality, regardless of whether they want to take on the role of interior designer themselves or decide to realise their furnishing dreams with the help of our consultants.

Peter Schönhofen: In the beginning it was definitely a struggle. In the late 1970s and 1980s the furniture industry was very conservative, especially here in Munich. Our first design ideas raised a lot of eyebrows: a tree as a coat rack? We're not in the middle of a forest! A bright red folding chair with a heart-shaped backrest - what kitsch! But it's exactly the crazy and the colourful that furnishing fans still love today in the shops we operate in 50 countries.

Jürgen Reiter: Lots of people criticised us two natives of Trier because we questioned conventional furnishing ideas. When we then mounted our two portraits as "The furnishing freaks" on our elderly Golfs as advertising and put up large posters of a man's backside, many people looked down their noses at us.

PS: If you want to be everybody's darling, in the end you're nobody's darling. When you're really committed to an idea you can accept setbacks. We started out small, and to this day we haven't let anything get in the way of our philosophy. We developed a shelving system for our books and study materials - a modular system just right for students and people furnishing their first flat. At the time this kind of things wasn't available in real-wood quality. And people were able to paint their shelving the way they wanted. We sold the shelving in our first shop in Karlstrasse on 40 square metres.

JR: It wasn't easy, because with the kind of modular system we were selling you want to advise the customer personally. That takes time and we also had to study and go to lectures. When I think about it today, there were no online shops, no online product configurator. You simply had to be present in the shop. Our stock was piled high in our 4 square metre kitchen, and in the evening we made our deliveries.

PS: And at the beginning we glued our advertising materials together by hand in our shared kitchen. That was my speciality. We then thought about what else we could sell in the shop to pay our rent. Back then you couldn't buy concert tickets everywhere so we sold them in our shop - that's how we generated more footfall. Next we filled our shelves with lots of witty accessories, so people were able to find original gifts.

JR: In spite of this many people still made fun of us. But then came the time when we first turned over 1,000 marks in a single day. That's when we felt that we had made it. Peter and I went to the Chinese Tower, bought beer and pretzels and were absolutely delighted.

“A BEAUTIFUL HOME IS THERAPY FOR THE SOUL. THIS IS WHAT INTERESTS ME ESPECIALLY IN MY WORK.”

JÜRGEN REITER

PETER SCHÖNHOFEN, CEO

At KARE we are one big family and my business partner and I are grateful that we still have direct contact with customers. It gives me real satisfaction to hear customers say that their apartment has been transformed and that the make-over feels great.

PS: The start-up phase and the long journey to our international KARE network of franchisees is easier if there are two of you, or if you work in a team. Our everyday lives have never been filled with peace and harmony all the time, and of course we're completely different personalities. But we occupy the cockpit of KARE together and want to make our customers' homes a happy place. Sure, we also have heated arguments sometimes, but that adds a little spice to what we do. We pick each other up when things get tough, and we challenge each other with our spontaneity and speed in the same way that we challenge our teams always to look for the best solution for our customers. You can't succeed without a great and committed workforce. That's where the human factor counts for us.

“MY FAMILY IS THE DRIVING FORCE BEHIND MY EXISTENCE. FAMILY IS LOVE AND HOME, AND THIS IS WHERE I DRAW MY STRENGTH FROM.”

JR: I still get stage fright every time we present our new collections. We set them up in our KARE Kraftwerk store in Sendling and invite our KARE friends to a preview. And when our customers then react positively to them, it makes us happy and drives us on.

PS: Yes, it shows that our customer community doesn't want to live off the peg but in their own distinctive way. With the help of our consultants everyone can have an interior tailored exactly to their taste. It gives me real satisfaction to hear customers say that their apartment has been transformed and that the make-over feels great.

JR: A small change is often all it takes. For years Peter has been involved in the development of our augmented reality app and in professional 3-D planning. With digital tools everything is easier nowadays, and our customers can test virtually what a new sofa or sideboard will look like in their home.

PS: UBut of course many of them also enjoy coming to our shops. The rule here is that touching is allowed. Seriously, buying furniture is an experience for all the senses. That's why our Insta-stories show productions for spectacular living rooms and equally practical tricks on how to turn a mini hallway into a stylish entrance.

JR: That's also what constitutes the charm of the Kraftwerk store and KARE. You can take time to stroll around, feel the fabrics, test the beds and enjoy a tasty snack in the Kraftwerk restaurant. We believe that such a sensuous, laid-back living experience is just right for people with a style of their own and a cosmopolitan attitude to life.

PS: I think our brand, the colourfulness and diversity to be found at Kraftwerk, in our collections online and offline and in the cultural richness of our company represent even more than just putting the fun into furnishing. All this also reflects an open and tolerant attitude to life, which is more important than ever in today's world. ■

FURNISHING IN NEW QUALITY

With us design, production and purchasing still are a matter for the boss. CEO Jürgen Reiter personally visits every single production company and workshop to check on quality, sustainable procurement and processing.

For many years he and his team have built up personal relationships with our manufacturers and several times a year they make an on-site inspection of their working conditions. In addition every manufacturer has to provide him with current, state-approved certificates which confirm the legal and ecologically compatible procurement and origin of the wood and other natural materials which are used. KARE wood products come exclusively from legal forestry - a process that creates trust and makes a valuable contribution to the future of all of us.

Sustainable furnishing: the solid acacia Harmony dining table with its naturally grown tree edge - a witness to a long tree life

Quality on the test bench

KARE stands for creativity full of passion. And yet it's bureaucracy that ensures the responsible treatment of nature and its fascinating materials. Our Quality Management team check every product in line with the strict EU regulations. In this way our team ensures that our wood procurement contributes to the preservation of nature. Paints, varnishes and coatings, for example, are also strictly regulated.

The Rustico collection made of recycled wood brings stories of forests flooded with light into the home

Here's to a long friendship

We love trends and boundless inspiration! That's why we have furniture, lighting and accessories for every taste and every style. After all, furnishing should be fun. And in our eyes furniture is not something to dispose of lightly. KARE joint CEO Peter Schönhofen: "It's part of our home, perhaps even part of the family, and it represents a value which we want to preserve." Carpenters often work for many days on a sideboard made of recycled or new solid wood. Furniture not only contains a natural product worthy of protection such as wood, but also the know-how gathered by centuries-old traditions of craftsmanship. This is why we offer you furniture that will accompany you for a long time as a loyal friend, because in this way, too, we all make a contribution to sustainability.

A feel-good furnishing experience

Valuable and natural materials such as real wood, marble, cotton, wool and linen are becoming an ever increasing part of our collections. This is because their colours, their feel and their stories convey a wonderful feeling of well-being, they don't pollute our environment and are recycled to return to the material cycle. In this way we also take responsibility for the careful use of resources.

With its rods made of recycled wood the Bastidon mirror pays tribute to every piece of wood, no matter how small, and gives it a new life

Dark ash wood, brass coloured stainless steel and the graphic form - that's pure harmony. DESIGNER COOPERATION

KARE X MORTEN GEORGSSEN

For Morten, pure function is not enough in his furniture designs. Born in Denmark, he is a designer and artist who loves to explore the world. When he creates collections - with components ranging from the sideboard to the desk - his work is in the tradition of Scandinavian design. But it's also important to Morten for a home to have a soul.

As a new member of the KARE family he develops furniture that combines function with individual character and selected materials. A collaboration that stands for the joy of living, as he tells us in this interview.

MORTEN GEORGEN,
Danish design icon

Morten, a key experience that has shaped your work as a designer was of all things a TV series. That's a bit unusual for a furniture designer, isn't it?

A few years ago I found myself watching an episode of Mad Men and was fascinated from the very first second. The creative world of Madison Avenue in 1960s New York was a striking visual experience. But I was particularly affected by the transformation of society into a more open place with fewer prejudices. At the time I also found the upheaval in the highly conformist, bourgeois furniture design exciting, triggered mainly by works from Italy and Denmark. In the end, it was a key sentence by the Mad Men protagonist Don Draper that impressed me most: "Keep it simple - but significant". That's my way of thinking.

Does this principle also apply to your own home? When we think of a designer's home, we tend to have an image in our heads of minimalist rooms and furniture.

I used to have a very minimalist house that I designed exactly according to this principle. It was in the mountains outside of Valencia in Spain - the kind of typical designer house that you see in lifestyle magazines and on TV. But then a few years ago I was drawn back to the city and now I live right in the centre of Valencia. My

LIVE! AND ENJOY IT!"

Our credo is NO NONSENSE design - for us this means designing furniture without frills that makes people happy.

With the RAVELLO series we bring modern classics to the world of furniture that enhance every style of furnishing.

current house has a lot of soul. I like having city life right on my doorstep.

Do you live with your own furniture in your home?

Yes, my own designs are collected there. Some of them are prototypes and some are designs currently in production. I like to mix them with classics such as Verner Panton lamps.

You have called your design studio "No-nonsense Design". In your work you play with aesthetics and function. KARE stands for exuberant designs and an unlimited variety of styles. What do you enjoy about working with KARE?

That everything is possible! We don't set ourselves any limits when it comes to new furnishing ideas, we think freely and without convention - as long as we are able to have our designs produced at reasonable prices. KARE's shops and furnishing worlds are bursting with inspiration. The KARE world is not grey in grey, but a colourful rainbow. I think it's great that KARE offers ideas for freshening up your home in just a few steps. For example, by adding a new coffee table to the seating group, or turning the hallway into a charming reception area by adding a decorative gorilla. But KARE can also do the big picture, working with its own professionals and three-dimensional planning sketches for the interior design of private homes as well as cool lifestyle hotels. Our shared motto is "the joy of living".

Is there a recipe for the "happy space", a delighted furnishing feeling?

So many different things make us happy. For some, it is long, deeply relaxed evenings watching a favourite series in a comfortable reclining armchair. Others love their functional dining table for eating and working. Others like to lounge on the sofa among lots of colourful cushions. Simply make a collage of your interior dreams, then ask your heart who you are and who you want to be. What do I need in terms of function and what appeals to my aesthetic sense? These are the important questions. It doesn't mean that you shouldn't ask for advice and be inspired by the ideas of others, quite the contrary. But remember that it's you - and not the others, not the designers - who should be satisfied with the results.

How do you add all this personal touch to your home?

Even back then in my minimalist house I furnished it to my taste with favourite pieces, and created my own distinctive look. At least that's what friends who visited me say. It's something intuitive, I couldn't write down any general rules now. Maybe it's because of the art I collect or the lamps. And - in terms of the joy of living - it's also a matter of the relaxed atmosphere with easy access to wine and tasty snacks. There's simply a lot of life in it.

Is there a no-go area in furnishing from a furniture designer's perspective?

I don't have the typical egocentric designer approach of creating something formally new, but take a pragmatic view of design. Design is made for people, so that they can enjoy it and feel comfortable. What you should really forget is decorating your home for other people. Do it for yourself! ■

THE IDEA BEHIND RAVELLO

"Ravello is our first complete design line for KARE. When we decided that the collection should be made of sheesham wood, we chose subtle and slim styling in which wood plays the leading role. Often a vividly coloured and grained wood like sheesham is subdued by design which is excessively obsessed with detail. In my opinion this is a misunderstanding of design.

We wanted the customer to be able to enjoy this exquisite type of wood in itself in a beautiful design framework. And our aim was to ensure that the design idea could be translated into all the necessary functions, from the dining table to the display cabinet, and then continued for all rooms. Thanks to the simplicity of its design, Ravello fits in with every style, whether as a stand-alone piece or as a furnishing concept for several rooms. These pieces of furniture are great basics for a home full of personality."

ABOUT SHEESHAM WOOD

- Sheesham wood is robust, tough and dense. The strength of the wood makes it the right choice for high quality wooden furniture.
- The colours of sheesham wood range from golden brown via dark brown to chestnut brown; with dark stripes in the grain.
- Once it has been oiled, polished or lacquered Sheesham shows a lively and shimmering surface. Its grain makes every piece of furniture unique.
- Sheesham wood is mainly found in India, as well as in Pakistan and Nepal. Sheesham trees have a lifespan of 22 years and during this time reach a height of 30 metres. Ravello's wood is of course from legal forestry.

Living as on the Côte d'Azur

Fragrant lavender fields, turquoise shimmering bays and breathtaking rocky landscapes: in Antibes on the French Mediterranean coast, Provençal charm meets Mediterranean flair.

The new hotel "La Villa Port d'Antibes & Spa" not only awakens holiday longings in us - the interior of the hotel also gives us a taste of the French Riviera.

Bon appétit: the breakfast room is the perfect place to start the day with style and enjoyment.

Only a few metres away from the port of Antibes, the largest marina in Europe, and at the foot of the old fortified city and its picturesque streets, the modern boutique hotel & spa opened its doors in June. The heart of each of the 56 rooms spread over four floors is the luxurious bed, whose headboard is distinguished in each case by an individually stretched fabric made by Christian Lacroix.

Body and facial treatments are offered in the hotel's own spa by Sothys, which has 3 massage cabins, including a duo, a hammam, an experience shower and a conservatory..

Culture tip: This is where Picasso lived and worked (his works from this period are in the Musée Picasso Château Grimaldi). Those who wish to experience the landscape of Claude Monet's famous painting "The Old Fort of Antibes", painted in 1888, can do so from the original location.
